Dear Sir:

Would you <sup>be</sup> ~~kind~~ <sup>semi monthly</sup> advise me of a weekly, ~~monthly~~, book on coins for sale to sell and exchange similar to the stamp collectors book that is issued. As I am starting a collection of American coins, and am very interested in getting genuine coins postal currency as well as fractional currency also any information you could give me on how to get 1st issues proof coins as well as commemoratives. <sup>without going to a dealer</sup> Any information that will help to get a good collection will be appreciated but I want genuine coins and I believe your society can advise me best. I can only buy a little at a time and therefore in time hope to get a real collection. Hope you will help me out and oblige

Yours truly

Dear Sir:

There is only one magazine published in this country on coins. This is the official organ of the American Numismatic Association. A circular concerning this and the information about the Numismatist, the magazine, is herewith enclosed. You can get the United States coins issued during the current year only by writing to the Director of the Mint, Washington, D. C., who will acquaint you on what has been issued and the amount of money you should send on. Proof sets are no longer made by this country. These for the most part have to be bought of dealers. Commemorative coins are largely in the hands of dealers today. By perusing the advertisements in the Numismatist you can pick out which dealers sells the cheapest. You can virtually get nothing good without trading with the dealers or putting your bids in at auction sales.

Very truly yours,
